song of the solstice

Winter comes, winter goes,
So does the eerie dusking sky the earth adores Darkened now is the moon's face,
As the snow pulls the earth in a cold embrace Glistening snow over the frozen lakes and mountains white Like fireflies in a dark night.

Winter comes, winter goes
The chill descends and soon the frost It's time we ponder over the things we lost Dusk comes early and dawn late,
While the heart of the saddened night aches
Yet it has the courage to turn into spring.

Winter comes, winter goes.

I had a dream
a dream where heaven was real feelings existed and words had meaning
I had a dream
a dream that should have been reality a dream where it all made sense a dream where I finally found her as i float deeper into this dark void I realise it's not so dark after all if there had never been a sun as time goes by as feelings slowly die
I wonder if you still cry like I do so I dream to keep myself from dying to keep myself from knowing the truth to keep myself from knowing you

19
They say it is For as long as You are How was I to know?
A carefree April kiss
Can turn into something amiss
The flames on my skin so bare introduced me to despair

But I wash it down
With the perfumed pretichor;
How was I to know?
I wasn't to mellow.
The strike of a lightning bolt, cries of the shattered windows Have seen right through me

Just away from 19
Even so, Oh!
How was I to know?
Storm was the very worst,I thought to myself Lost in the winter charm,it's shimmer and snowflakes and nights Didn't prepare me for yet another icy plight.

I remember, for as long as I'm;
remember the frozen land and the frigid hands,it's numbing grey Say "Help me hold on..."
Hold onto the flicker, Drops of red pouring down
And how it glistened as it fell
